What's Important To You?

If you feel the first signs of a cold coming on such as a sore throat, coughing, runny nose or even a fever you immediately start taking precautions so it doesn't get any worse, right?! Well it should be the same for your feet. In a recent survey of 2,000 adults, conducted by One Poll on behalf of the College of Podiatry, discovered that 90 percent of female respondents had foot issues.

The most common problems among women included blisters (55 percent), cracked heels (45 percent), verrucas (warts) (28 percent), corns (24 percent) and ingrown toenails (20 percent). However, 19 percent of women admitted they had never sought help for their foot abnormalities as they did not believe they were important!

We believe YOUR health is very important and your feet are your foundation. You wouldn't let a cough go untreated until it turned into pneumonia, would you? So don't let any discomfort or early signs of issues with your feet go untreated. Contact our office if you're suffering or have concerns with your feet and we will help get you back to total health.
